Founded 133 years ago, The Boys' Club of New York was the first of its kind in the nation and continues to provide "firsts" for the lives of inner-city boys through three clubhouses and a 110 acre camp that serve over 4,000 boys a year. BCNY is a safe haven where many boys first find a non-threatening community and positive role models, recreation and sports programs that build bodies and character, a place to learn life skills they take beyond clubhouse walls, and the educational opportunities that fuel curiosity and make learning not an obligation to someone else, but to themselves. At BCNY, boys feel for the first time that they have the right to dream and the potential to make those dreams come true.
